Your Project, Our Role...

The Preservation Collaborative provided a report to Minuteman National Park on greening Hartwell Tavern, which is used as an interpretive structure.

The report covered a potential caretakers wing (which would be completely reversible) and the historic portion open to the public. We suggested products and solutions to a handful of non-threatening problems found within the three century old building.

The Preservation Collaborative can help clients understand their historic buildings through research and inspection. Multiple trades allow a clear report to be created under one roof.
