Your Project, Our Role...

The Preservation Collaborative extensively researched the circa 1895 Tower House for the former owners.

Walter Tower was a drugist who owned a shop nearby. He and his wife had their house built in the fashionable Melrose Highlands neighborhood which was laid out by noted engineer Ernest Bowditch of Boston.

This report included a deed search, historic photographs and records.

The Preservation Collaborative has extensive knowledge in researching your historic home.

Our consultants have key understanding of local repositories. We can efficiently research and decode a building's past. With the addition of physical analysis, we can help you learn everything about the historic past life of your most valuable asset.
